An Eastern Canadian Port – Leading Seaman Wright Evoy, R.C.N.V.R., of London, Ont., played an important role in H.M.C.S. “MORDEN’s” latest adventure at sea, the story of which was revealed today by the Royal Canadian Navy.

Evoy, who joined the navy in March 1940 and has been with the Morden for more than two years, was a member of the boarding party and also of the crew which took over the salvaged ML and piloted it into Gibraltar.

During the 300-mile ML trip, Evoy spent many tiring hours at the wheel and, like the rest of the crew, averaged “very little” sleep.

“No, I wasn’t sea sick,” he said a bit sheepishly. “I felt kind of tough the first day – but not actually sick.”
